

Livestock Registration Verification and Animal Identification Procedures

Starting this year, a conscious effort is being made to standardize how livestock department management interacts at check-in with exhibitors for purpose of (1) reviewing registration papers to verify the eligibility of the animal to compete in certain specific class(es); and (2) physically inspecting each animal to verify its identity by using identification criteria such as non-electronic ear tags, electronic ID tags (i.e. RFID or 840 USDA FDX EID), ear notches, Scrapie ID tags, legible and healed tattoos, etc.

Following is a list of each species along with the date, time and place for review of registration papers and animal identification.
